Understanding Action and Linking Verbs

To effectively use an action and linking verbs worksheet, it is essential first to understand the fundamental differences between these two verb categories. Action verbs describe activities or processes that the subject performs, such as "run," "write," or "think." These verbs convey physical or mental actions that can be observed or imagined. In contrast, linking verbs do not express action but instead connect the subject of a sentence to a subject complement, which provides additional information about the subject. Common linking verbs include forms of "to be" (am, is, are, was, were), "seem," "become," and "feel."

Definition and Examples of Action Verbs

Action verbs portray specific actions taken by the subject. These verbs are dynamic and can be either transitive, where the action is directed towards an object, or intransitive, where no object receives the action. Examples of action verbs include:

- Jump

- Write
- Speak
- Think
- Drive

Definition and Examples of Linking Verbs

Linking verbs serve as a bridge between the subject and the predicate, describing a state or condition rather than an action. They often link the subject to an adjective or noun that describes or identifies it. Examples of linking verbs include:

- Am
- Is
- Are
- Become
- Seem
