Historical Context of the Warsaw Ghetto

The Warsaw Ghetto was established by Nazi Germany in 1940 as a means to isolate and control the Jewish population of Warsaw, Poland. At its peak, the ghetto confined over 400,000 Jews within an area of just 1.3 square miles, resulting in overcrowding, starvation, and rampant disease. The ghetto was heavily guarded and sealed off from the rest of the city, creating a devastating environment of suffering and despair. The notes from the Warsaw Ghetto 1 originate from this period and provide a first-hand account of the conditions endured by the inhabitants.

Formation and Structure of the Ghetto

The ghetto was officially created in November 1940, with walls constructed to separate Jewish residents from the non-Jewish population of Warsaw. Streets and buildings were restructured to accommodate the forced relocation of Jews into this enclosed space. The conditions deteriorated rapidly due to limited food supplies, lack of medical care, and the constant threat of deport
