Overview of Oklahoma CLEET Training Schedule

The Oklahoma CLEET training schedule is designed to provide structured educational opportunities for law enforcement officers, both new recruits and experienced personnel. CLEET manages the official training calendar, which includes mandatory basic training for new officers as well as advanced courses covering various specialized topics. The schedule is updated regularly to reflect changes in law enforcement standards, legal requirements, and emerging trends in criminal justice.

By adhering to the CLEET training schedule, agencies ensure their officers meet state certification requirements and remain knowledgeable about current laws, policies, and procedures. The training calendar also supports workforce development by offering flexible sessions across different locations and times to accommodate diverse schedules.

Basic Law Enforcement Training Schedule

Structure of Basic Training

The basic law enforcement training program is the foundation for all Oklahoma peace officers. It typically spans approximately 16 weeks and covers essential topics such as criminal law, firearms proficiency, defensive tactics, emergency vehicle operations, and community policing. The CLEET training schedule specifies the start and end dates for each academy session offered throughout the year.

Typical Training Calendar

Basic training classes are often held multiple times per year, with sessions beginning in the spring, summer, and fall. Each academy session follows a rigorous daily schedule, generally Monday through Friday, from early morning until late afternoon. The schedule includes both classroom instruction and practical exercises to ensure cadets are well-prepared for field duties.

- Spring Session: Usually starts in February or March
- Summer Session: Typically begins in June or July
- Fall Session: Often commences in September or October

Applicants must apply and be accepted before the start of the session, with deadlines varying depending on the academy location.

Advanced and Specialized Training Programs

Types of Advanced Training

Beyond basic training, CLEET offers a variety of advanced and specialized courses designed to enhance officers' skills and knowledge. These programs include instruction on topics such as drug interdiction, sexual assault investigations, crisis intervention, leadership development, and tactical operations. The CLEET training schedule lists these courses with specific dates and locations throughout the year.

Scheduling and Availability

Advanced training sessions are often shorter than basic academy programs, ranging from one-day workshops to multi-week courses. They are strategically scheduled to accommodate working officers and are frequently offered at multiple locations statewide. This flexibility enables law enforcement personnel to participate without significantly disrupting their regular duties.

How to Register for CLEET Training

Registration for CLEET training programs is managed through the official CLEET system. Prospective trainees and current officers must meet eligibility criteria and complete application forms within designated timeframes. The registration process typically involves submitting personal and agency information, selecting desired courses based on the published training schedule, and receiving confirmation of enrollment.

It is essential to monitor the CLEET training schedule closely, as some sessions fill quickly due to limited capacity. Early registration ensures a spot in the preferred class and allows adequate preparation time for participants.

Continuing Education and Recertification

Oklahoma law enforcement officers are required to complete ongoing continuing education to maintain certification. The CLEET training schedule includes mandatory yearly or biannual refresher courses on topics such as legal updates, use of force, and ethical standards. These sessions are critical for keeping officers current with evolving laws and best practices.

Failure to comply with continuing education requirements can result in suspension or revocation of certification. Therefore, officers and agencies must incorporate the CLEET training schedule into their professional development planning.

Important Dates and Deadlines

The CLEET training schedule features several key dates and deadlines that applicants and officers must observe. These include application cutoffs for basic training sessions, registration periods for advanced courses, and deadlines for completing required continuing education credits. Awareness of these dates helps ensure smooth participation and compliance with state regulations.

To assist with planning, agencies often distribute annual training calendars derived from the official CLEET schedule. Personnel should regularly consult these calendars to stay informed about upcoming training opportunities and critical milestones.

- Application deadlines for basic academy enrollment
- Registration windows for specialized courses
- Continuing education completion deadlines
- Notification periods for schedule changes or cancellations
