questions and time allowed may vary depending on the specific course or certification level, such as Basic First Aid, CPR/AED, or Advanced First Aid.

The ASHI final exam generally consists of 30 to 50 questions that test theoretical knowledge.

Candidates are given a specific time frame, usually ranging from 30 to 60 minutes, to complete the test. Some courses incorporate a practical skills evaluation where candidates demonstrate proficiency in CPR techniques, bleeding control, or airway management.

Passing Criteria and Certification

To pass the ASHI final exam, candidates must achieve a minimum score, often around 80% or higher.
